IMPORTED SALT COD.

Newfoundland Salt Banker Klondike at This Port.

Brings 200,000 Pounds of These Desired Fish.

The St. John's, N. F., banker Klondike arrived here yesterday from that port with a fare of 200,000 pounds of salt cod, the result of her recent trip. Her commander, Capt.
Jack Lewis, is one of the high liners of the Newfoundland bank fleet.

It is understood that the fish are mostly all large, and the fare will be placed on the market. The fish are subject to a duty of 75 cents per hundred pounds.

This is the first Newfoundland banker to come here to market her fare for many years.

MACKEREL GALORE.

Monster Catch Made at St. Margaret's Bay, N. S.

ESTIMATED AT 80,000 FISH.

All Landed Fresh To Be Shipped to Boston.

A Halifax, N. S., dispatch dated yesterday says:

"Immense schools of mackerel have struck in on this coast, and the fishermen from St.
Margaret's bay as far east as Halifax harbor made great hauls Saturday and today, more than 80,000 being secured in this vicinity.
The fish are all large, and the majority were brought to the city today and are being barrel-ed in ice for shipment to Boston. The fish are all close in shore, but should the wind change to the southeast they will go off the coast. A fleet of American seiners is hovering about the three-mile limit, but is doing nothing."

Sch. Minette arrived here Sunday with 1833 fresh mackerel caught in nets Saturday night off Thatchers. John Nagle & Co bought the fare paying 18 cents a piece.

Sch. Laughing Water, another netter is at Boston today with 1500 fresh mackerel.

The fishermen of St. Peter's Bay, Richmond, N. S., appear to have had quite a bountiful harvest from the mackerel crop during the past season. When the fish struck in they came in so fast and in such quantities that the fishermen found it difficult to take care of them. Within two weeks some thousands of barrels were packed, many fishermen having over a hundred barrels to a boat while a few considerably exceeded this. One fisherman got about $1800 for his summer's catch of mackerel, besides what he did in cod and other fish products.

FIRST FOR FROZEN HERRING.

Schs. Avalon and Richard Wain- wright Sail Today.

Both Equipped To Artificially Freeze Fish.

Schs. Richard Wainwright, Capt. Dominick Arseneau, and Avalon, Capt. Thomas Bohlin, the first of the Newfoundland frozen herring fleet to fit out this season, sailed today for Bay of Islands for frozen cargoes, being the first of the fleet to get away.

Both vessels are equipped with pans and salt for artificially freezing herring and will stop at Boothbay for ice.
